WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

There will be very strong southerly winds this afternoon into Thursday morning. Peak gusts of 50 to 80 mph are expected across much of the area with strongest winds in the typical locations, at the coast, over the mountains and in the Shasta valley. This will be a powerful storm with the potential for power outages and difficult travel for high profile vehicles. The timing of the associated cold front will bring peak wind gusts between 10 pm this evening and 4 am early Thursday morning.

Eureka Weather:

Some light rain today and gusty south winds will give way to heavy rain this evening and overnight into early Thursday. Additional storm systems will bring more rain through early next week with the threat of flooding in low lying areas.

Reno Weather:

A weak disturbance will bring light snow and rain this morning mainly north of highway 50. Winds will increase overnight with strong and gusty winds expected by Thursday morning. Periods of rain and snow into this weekend through early next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Light rain is likely today especially over the North Bay. Much more significant rainfall is expected for tomorrow into Friday as an atmospheric river sets up and takes aim at the region. Additional systems will bring widespread rainfall to our area this weekend.
